

Answer: Gouty arthritis

Gout is a crystal arthropathy due to deposition of monosodium urate crystals in and around the joints. Usually has an asymmetrical polyarticular distribution with 1st MTP joint most commonly involved. The typical appearance is the presence of well-defined “punched-out” erosions (arrow) with sclerotic margins in a marginal and juxta-articular distribution, with overhanging edges.