

1. Langerhans cell histiocytosis is due to uncontrolled monoclonal proliferation of Langerhan cells that form granulomas within any organ system.
2. Skull is most frequent bony site involved by LCH, which present as sharply marginated lytic skull defect with beveled margins.
3. Small soft tissue mass can be depicted by CT scan.